

PILLAGE HIS FAIR HOSTESS.

A Young Lady Charges Her Handsome Guest with Theft.
Stole Her Watch, Locket and Pin While Dancing with Her.

Webster B. Hill, a good-looking, well-dressed young man of twenty-six, who is said to be a graduate of Yale University and who has been a society man since he left Chicago some time ago for the East, was charged in the Adams street police court, Brooklyn, this morning with being a most ungrateful thief.

The specific charge against the young man was grand larceny, alleged by Miss Alice M. McEivaine, of Princeton, N. J., to have been committed by Hill while dancing with her at a reception which she gave at her own home on the night of Feb. 20, and which Hill attended.

Hill had come East shortly before the event with his mother, the widow of a wealthy Chicago merchant, who intended to start her in business. They put up at the St. George hotel in Brooklyn, and young Hill danced immediately into the social swim and attended at many a society event.

Among these was the reception given by Miss McEivaine, whom he had previously met in Brooklyn. He was especially attentive to his fair hostess, and danced repeatedly with her. Nothing was thought of this, however, until the next day, when a combination of peculiar circumstances set the matter on foot.

Miss McEivaine's guests had scarcely departed when she suddenly discovered that her gold watch, chain and chain with ball pendant, a blue enamel locket and a diamond pin, which she had worn, were missing.

At first she supposed that they had fallen from her while dancing, but a search of the house failed to discover the jewelry, and it became suspected that some one had stolen them.

Probably the finger of suspicion would not have been directed towards Hill but for other peculiar circumstances. Inquiry at his hotel in Princeton developed the fact that not one of that name had stopped there, but a Mr. Philip D. Armour, said to be the Chicago millionaire's son, had put up at the hotel without having tendered any money for his accommodations.

The hotel proprietor was somewhat surprised at the wealthy "Mr. Armour's" reticence, but when he described his guest and learned that he was none other than Hill, and that Miss McEivaine's jewelry and Hill had disappeared simultaneously, he thought he smelled a rat.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

DAY'S DOINGS IN BROOKLYN.

A Leaf from the History of the City of Churches.

Incidents of Minor Interest Told in Terse Style.

Burglars in Harness.
Burglars entered the stable of William Connel, at 244 South First street, Williamsburg, during the night and stole harness valued at $20.

Fell and Broke His Leg.
Francis Gregory, of 200 Ninth street, Brooklyn, fell at the corner of Meserole and Franklin streets this morning and broke his left leg.

Mrs. Duffy's Lamp Exploded.
Flames were discovered at 12:30 o'clock this morning in the apartments of Miss Kate Duffy at 530 Lorimer street, Brooklyn. The fire was caused by the explosion of a kerosene lamp, and caused a loss of $100 on furniture.

Plundered of Their Jewels.
During the absence of the family last evening the residence of Henry L. Williamson, at 374 Mark place, Brooklyn, was entered by thieves and robbed of a watch and other jewelry.

Hundred Dollars' Worth of Fire.
Fire a little after midnight in the apartments of Mrs. Anna Stepe, 109 Second avenue, Brooklyn, caused damage of $100.

Thieves in a Knitting Mill.
The Kings County Knitting Mill, at McKibben street and Bushwick avenue, Brooklyn, was entered by burglars early this morning and robbed of $103 worth of goods.

Held for Malicious Mischief.
Frank Campbell, 384 Pacific street, was held for examination in the Butler street Police Court, Brooklyn, this morning, charged with malicious mischief in breaking a window at 111 Butler street.

Pawned His Watch, Broke His Skull.
Charles E. Maxon, fifty years old, of 7 Jefferson avenue, Brooklyn, was found unconscious at the corner of Atlantic and Sixth avenues early this morning. He was taken to the Homoeopathic Hospital, where it was discovered that he had sustained a fracture of the skull. His gold watch and chain were missing. He regained consciousness later and was taken to the hospital.

MRS. DAVIS NO. 2 NOT THERE.
Williamsburg's Chemist May Escape on the Bigamy Charge.

Frank E. Davis was arraigned in the Lee Avenue Police Court, Brooklyn, this morning charged with bigamy.

Davis was arrested last Tuesday in New York City on a charge of getting $65 from Mrs. Margaret Frenette, of 128 East Nineteenth street, New York, on the understanding that he would give a concert with Cappel's Seventh Regiment Band at the Amphion Academy, Brooklyn, and that Mrs. Frenette's daughter, who is quite an artist in dancing and plays the mandolin, would be the star of the occasion.

The case was brought up in the Jefferson Market Police Court, New York, yesterday. Mrs. Frenette's complaint was being heard when a handsomely dressed blonde of thirty years appeared and claimed that she was Davis's legal wife; that he had abandoned her nine years ago and married a divorced woman named Mrs. Orlando P. Thompson.

Davis's No. 2, formerly Mrs. Thompson, paid the $65 to Mrs. Frenette and the larceny case was discharged, but Mr. Davis was held on the charge of the new-comer, who claimed to be his only lawful wife, and sent to the Lee Avenue Police Court, Brooklyn, for a hearing.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

At first Hill blustered and protested that he had no idea where the jewelry was, but when he was told that the watch and chain were found in his pockets he was silent.

WILL MAKE A GOOD BISHOP.

Clergy and Laity Pleased by Mgr. McDonnell's Election.

His Early Training Acquired in the City of Churches.

General satisfaction is expressed among priests and laymen over Pope Leo's appointment of Mgr. Charles E. McDonnell, private secretary to Archbishop Corrigan and chancellor of the New York Archdiocese, as the new Catholic Bishop of Brooklyn.

The difference which it is said about Brooklyn by the news that Jack McManus, who in 1885 was sent to prison for four years and four months for house-breaking, had been set free and is still at liberty in the City of Churches.

The records in the District Attorney's office show that McManus and George Bloom, a negro, were arrested together on the night of Jan. 8, 1888, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

TO DISCIPLINE MR. KINKEL.

To Be Shorn of His Veto Power as Supervisor-at-Large.

His Course Said to Have Angered Democratic Leaders.

The difference which it is said about Brooklyn by the news that Jack McManus, who in 1885 was sent to prison for four years and four months for house-breaking, had been set free and is still at liberty in the City of Churches.

The records in the District Attorney's office show that McManus and George Bloom, a negro, were arrested together on the night of Jan. 8, 1888, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

SHE MAY DIE OF HER FRIGHT.

Convict Burglar McManus Walks Brooklyn Streets at Will.

His Tale of Regaining Liberty Without Discharge from Prison.

The difference which it is said about Brooklyn by the news that Jack McManus, who in 1885 was sent to prison for four years and four months for house-breaking, had been set free and is still at liberty in the City of Churches.

The records in the District Attorney's office show that McManus and George Bloom, a negro, were arrested together on the night of Jan. 8, 1888, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in Williamsburg and stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $1,500. Mike Mcadden, alias "Bullhead Mike," was arrested the following day.

McManus and Bloom were both sentenced to the Auburn prison. McManus was sentenced to two years and four months, and Bloom to two years and two months.

McManus was released from prison on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, and was again arrested on the night of Jan. 8, 1890, for burglarizing the house of Lester Logan in